

Hungarian Restaurant

This restaurant is testimony to the glory of lands which have been rebuilt over centuries and recipes that have accumulated rich influences from their colourful past

Kensington & Chelsea Review

GAY HUSSAR

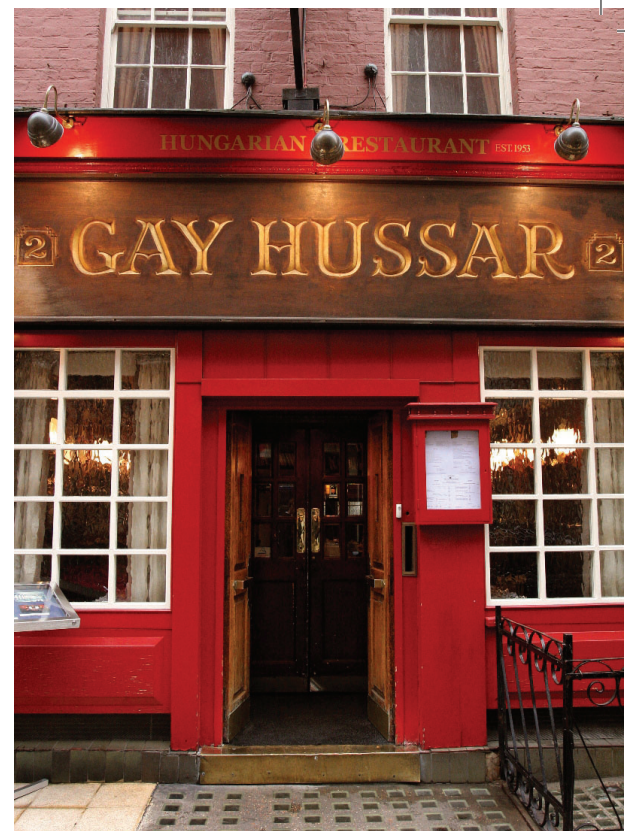

The Gay Hussar is one of Europe's most celebrated Hungarian Restaurants, located in the heart of London's 'Theatreland' in Soho. For 50 years it has served a traditional Hungarian menu that boasts many national specialities complemented by a selection of the finest Hungarian wines.

The intimate environment over 3 floors and club atmosphere has attracted generations of the UK's leading political figures, journalists and has been a favourite haunt for artists and writers.

The Gay Hussar features comfortable banquette seating, dark wood panelling, antiques, book shelves packed with scores of political first editions and walls adorned with a caricature gallery by cartoonist Martin Rowson (featuring many of the UK's most prominent political figures) all adding to the charm of this unique restaurant.

The Gay Hussar also boasts two private rooms, known to have held many a secret meeting! Both are available for meetings, private dining or the whole venue can be hired for exclusive use for groups of up to 120 people.

A destination for anyone wanting to experience a capsule of London's history, in a unique environment serving quality food, of generous portions, with service that rates second to none.

The menu inspires confidence with its authenticity
